Contractor's Pollution Liability Policy (CPL)

"Environmental exposures constitute a growing area of risks for contractors and consultants"

Since the first Earth Day in 1970, the world has become much more conscious of the impact of commerce and human activities on the earth's ecology. This growing environmental sensitivity has been reflected in the evolution of environmental, laws from statutes that sought to provide protection against major sources of pollution to the air and water, environmental, laws have come to affect every sector of the economy, even including small building sites and something as ordinary as painting a room in a house.

Failure to adequately protect against environmental risks can result in multi-million dollar expenses, and even higher fines or awards that could jeopardize the company's existence. Fortunately, coverage for environmental risks has evolved along with these changes in laws and regulations, offering contractors and consultants crucial protection against constantly changing environmental exposures.

The Contractor's Pollution Liability Policy offers solutions specifically developed for contractors, which prevent gaps in converage due to pollution-related exclusions on standard commercial general liability programs. Policies are available for contractors on a practice, project or excess basis.
